Whether you play the radio yourself or spend most of your time trying to get out of its range, be sure and read this. If you like it, you may learn of some good things going on that you have missed. If you don't like it, it will make you appreciate the rest of the paper all the more.

Some of you guys who are always howling about the radio being on should move to Shanghai. Over there a person is arrested if he plays the radio too loud. Think what would happen to some of these fans in front of the college if that law were in effect here.

Since this is the first appearance of this 'ere column, it is only right that we start out with the old home town. Yes, even St. Pete raises radio talent. Neila Goodelle, star of the "Outers" program at 9:45 on Sunday nights, was brought up in St. Pete under the title of Helen Goodelle. Her new name, Neila was made by pronouncing "Helen" backwards and spelling it the way it sounds. Miss Goodelle's grandparents still live in publicity last Saturday.

St. Pete also received another bit of publicity last Saturday.
