it responded to the critical comment concerning the price of the annual and made an inquiry into the budget of the student activity fund. The capyage of both alcoses the price of the student activity fund. The capyage of both alcoses the price of the student activity fund. 'The canvass of both classes showed that the students were anxious to know where their money was being ex-pended and why no more of it was being used to support the annual and to lower its price. The budget which Dean Reed annual and to lower its price. The budget which Dean Reed showed the Council and which Mr. Gager presented to the college showed that the students hitherto have been entirely too hetic and thoughtless in their demands, not only th but for several years. For instance at the beginning of the year there was such a demand on the part of the boys for swimming privileges at the Y. M. C. A. that Dean Reed was forced to pay a hundred dollars from the fund for these privileges. Yet now, unknown to Dean Reed until the Council reported it, this privilege is practically never being used. Most of that money is ilege is practically never being used. now, where it might have served some useful purpose.

Until last year there was a great demand for football; the that the cost of it was ham pering every other activity by depleting the activity fund and even drawing on the general college fund. Then Dean Reed wisely took advantage of the rapidly waning interest and stopned football altogether. He could have made no better move the general welfare of the college, for the absence of football has made possible as sane balance of expenditures among the various activities. It leaves everyone the chance to get his money's worth from extra curricular activities. But it is evident that more adjustments must be made. The students have indicated that they do want an annual largely paid for out of the activity fund. That is as it should be, for the annual in the long run means more to a larger number of students than does any-thing else that the students get from college. But what other Rackathall is receiving the enhusing-tic support of the manager and cheer leader and of practically no one else. Isn't it wanted? Let us hope so, because the spirit created among the students at one exciting game can do more to knit the studet body into a live, mutually interested and friendly group than any amount of daily contact in classes can do. That is what basket-ball or any other sport or activity is for: to bring the students together in a social way and make them all interested members of the college organization. And as for swimming, why is it receiving no attention or support when we have such a good team?

All this comes back to another important question: why is it that the only activities that are well supported are those non-athletic ones in which our teachers are the moving arising and the desired and the support of the support o driving force as the case may be? In the three coming events, the Glee club concert, the Shakespearean play, and the May fete, why can't the students take active control of the stage work and the publicity instead of leaving those respo to the faculty? Decidedly this should be seriously thought about
