"Pros and Cons" of the New Chapel Policy

The Junior College is progressing each year as it further adopts modern collegiate policies. Looking back, we find that in November, 1931, the Athletic Council was formed to place control of athletics in the hands of the students. In 1933, the Inter-Club Council was organized to benefit the college by governing the activities of clubs. In 1934, the registrar's office was added to the college. In 1935, the Dean of Women was added to the faculty to further aid the students.

The innovation of 1936 is the new chapel policy whereby the student is not compelled to attend chapel.

This new system is gladly welcomed by the entire student body. Each person appreciates the fact that he is independent. When he attends chapel he goes to be entertained or instructed, not because the roll is going to be checked.

The majority of the college does attend chapel indicating that they enjoy these half hours of relaxation during the week. But there are the few who never assemble with the group on the M. W. F

Bill Gautier and Shelton Lindsay were towers of strength in the line of the first Junior College football team. They went on together to make names for themselves with the Stetson Hatters of DeLand, with Bill Gautier captain of the team in his senior year. Though members of the first M. Short Biography No. 1 Unheralded and unsung he entered Junior College, a member of its first class. Lacking previous achletic training he became a star halfback and safety man on the strong Trojan football team, and was a member of the basketball team. Elected class president, his sophomore year he had the honor of being president of the first class to graduate from the Junior College. He won a place at end on the Maryville College football team and became a star short distance runner on its track team. Scholastically he accomplished a feat that had never before been done by making a straight A average his senior year. He also became president of his graduating class. He won his master's degree at Iowa State College and became the first Junior College to possess such a degree.
